Dear Professor Marcus:

As you may recall, I am one of the lawyers who provided comments to you in December of 2002 regarding the need for proposed rules to address the unique aspects of the discovery of electronic information.

I am encouraged by the Discovery Subcommittee's April 2003 proposal to draft proposed rules for discussion purposes.

Based upon my experience defending corporate clients in civil litigation across the country, it is clear that additional guidance is needed in the form of proposed rules and/or comments to existing rules. I am an officer of the Defense Research Institute (DRI) and have been asked to serve as the point person for DRI on this important issue. If I can be of assistance to you or the Subcommittee, please call on me. Again, thank you for your efforts in working to address the lack of predictability and consistency in the area of electronic discovery.

Regards. David Dukes
